Chapter 1 by christina mary

It started in the six grade boys all around me looking cute and older from before the summer then i notice the girls how their looking so cute with their tans and their hair different some longer some shorter but i push my feelings aside because im pretty popular and i dont want to ruin any of that for me or my friends. At all the sleep overs i always go in the closet and always blame it on my period, then i hated at night cuz wen my best friend would give the three of us kisses good night i would enjoy it but have deniey it. In seventh grade and half way through 8th i had moved away and i had hated myself and everyone around me. Then during 8th grade i came back and i had all my old friends and i slowly started to tell them one by one.

And by freshmen year
